Jonas Webber, the Fighting Cowboy of La Grac, who will fight Johnny Walsh of Inverness in the main bout on Frank Donald's fight card, to be held at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday evening, March 17, arrived on Tuesday's train to put the finishing touches on his training.

Jonas, who was looking fit as a fiddle, was accompanied by his sparring partner, Don Butler of Sexsmith. Asked by The Tribune reporter for his opinion on his coming battle, Jonas replied:

"I realize that I am going into the toughest fight in my fighting career, and that I am giving away 20 pounds. This is considerable of a concession to anyone, and especially to a man of the reputation of Walsh."

"Have you any definite plans in your mind as to the way you intend to fight?"

The banners carried by the strikers read "Hunger Strikers March Against Starvation" and "No Unemployment Bill Without a Penny for the Workers." The demonstration passed off very quietly largely due to the weather, which made the marchers very disheartened.

First aid was administered by Henry Monksman and J. G. Gieseler, who effectively stemmed the flow of blood, after which the injured man was being taken to the hospital and the party started for Sexsmith.

About half way between Buffalo Lake and Sexsmith the sleigh was being driven by W. H. Johnson of Wembley.

Charles Dixon was working for M. Lewis and accompanied Lewis and Jim O'Connell when they went to the mill to get some timber which was being squared. Lewis and O'Connell went to the mill's truck four miles away to have dinner. Dixon remained to get his own share, which was to be delivered at the mill by Henry Patrick. At this point the party were also met by Dr. Gieseler, who was notified by phone. The doctor advised rushing Dixon to the Grande Prairie Hospital. Although the accident time was made, the injured man passed away about an hour and a half after arriving, the shock proving too great.

Sanford Ross Was In Grande Prairie Part of 1932

On the Illustrated News of the Week page of last week's Tribune appeared a front and side view of Jean ("Gene") Crandall, the present Chicago hitman, who broke into the news recently as the female beneficiary to a $300,000 fortune, in is prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

The Tribune is informed on reliable authority that Crandall, whose real name is Sanford Ross, was in Grande Prairie with a man by the name of Crandall from June to August, 1932.

It is further stated that the two went through a marriage ceremony at Vancouver some time before coming to Grande Prairie. They left here for parts unknown.

Ross, who at convenient intervals posed as a woman, according to an eastern newspaper, was considered under the name of "Jean Priscilla Crandall" at Fort Leavenworth, 1933, on a charge of "vagueness." The prisoner, in this case, claimed to be married and the name of "Jean Priscilla Crandall" was used in the case.

Timely Hints From the Beaverlodge Sub-Station

W. D. Albright

"IT IS A PLEASURE AS WELL AS A DUTY TO SERVE"

"Not all who seem to fall have failed indeed. Not all who fall have therefore worked in vain. For out of earnest purpose, pure and plain. Enforced by honest toil of hand or brain. The Lord will fashion in His own good time. Such souls as in His wisdom fitted him. With His vast love's eternal harmonies. What though they suffer by the way-side. And the birds snatch it? Yet the birds are fed. Or they may bear it far across the waves. To give rich harvests after thou art dead."

With the above in mind C. M. Clarke, the coloured soldier settler of Teepee Creek, philosophically views the rabbit ravage of his efforts at small-fruit production, a wrecked time and labour. Most of his plans since coming to the Peace River, Alberta, have been to produce small-fruit, but it is certain that none of them have been without great benefit. Others also in the neighbourhood, understanding the present disappointment. He will probably be looking for a change of the fruit trees and bushes to renew or to form stock for timbering and may plant others when the rabbits have ceased to run or when he can afford poultry or other stock.

To succeed carry it far. In a farm, it is more and not a place to reap a harvest and sell the produce, to spend again for a living on the farm. We have seen many who have practically all we need to live on and have exchanged their land for merchants' stock for their merchandise. The stores have been in debt to the ranch and stock men. The ranch has been with them.

H.D.G. McLennan, Alta.

In my way of thinking one of the things that is wrong with the world today is too much materialism. Especially of our public men who are giving their best for the benefit of the public. They in my humble judgment are being crucified every day, sir, not by the sword but by the human tongue, which cuts deeper than the sword. Who huge goes for real co-operation in all things.

J. H. A. Grimshaw, Alta.

Mating Geese

How many geese to one male? How can you tell a male? Mrs. R. K. M. Leonard, Alta. Ans: In mating the usual rule is three geese to one male. In a ratio of four to five to one is practiced by some breeders. Following is a paragraph quoted from "Geese Raising," U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, Farmers Bulletin No. 186: "It is difficult to distinguish in geese, especially when they are young. The male is usually larger, heavier and coarser than the female and has a shrill, high voice. The male has a harsh, coarse cry. The female has a softer, sweeter cry. The male has a longer neck and a larger head. The sex may be determined by inspecting the sexual or by the actions of the geese at mating. The male is the aphidic muscle, which closes the anus of the female, appears closed if struck, while the female's is open. Around the vent in the male will make the sexual organ, which is not so much as in the female. The male is made to advantage only just preceding or during the breeding season and on mature, sexually mature geese the male is lighter colored than the female."

Loss Smut in Wheat

Last year my wheat, although treated with copper carbonate had about smut. This was quite noticeable in the field, and disappeared by cutting time. Should this wheat be all right for this year, and would copper carbonate be the best treatment?

R. M. Peace River, Alta.

Ans: Quite evidently loose smut, chemical treatment is of the slightest avail against this disease. The most effective treatment is the use of the three-lime iodine solution. This is the fungus causing the trouble occurs on the inside of the seed where with corn or rye, and is not carried on the outside of the seed coat by a solution or gas applied externally. For loose smut the temperature treatment is the only effective one. This is described in the bulletin "Diseases of Cultivated Plants," "The Cause and Control," available from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The hot-water treatment is somewhat precarious and costly so that it is not recommended except as a means of cleaning up a small lot of seed. A larger stock may be propagated.

Treat Seed Potatoes Before Sprouting

Kindly send formula for the treating of potatoes for seed. When should they be treated and in what previous to planting?

L. R. G. Bromhead, Alta.

With the above in mind C. M. Clarke, the coloured soldier settler of Teepee Creek, philosophically views the rabbit ravage of his efforts at small-fruit production, a wrecked time and labour. Most of his plans since coming to the Peace River, Alberta, have been to produce small-fruit, but it is certain that none of them have been without great benefit. Others also in the neighbourhood, understanding the present disappointment. He will probably be looking for a change of the fruit trees and bushes to renew or to form stock for timbering and may plant others when the rabbits have ceased to run or when he can afford poultry or other stock.

To succeed carry it far. In a farm, it is more and not a place to reap a harvest and sell the produce, to spend again for a living on the farm. We have seen many who have practically all we need to live on and have exchanged their land for merchants' stock for their merchandise. The stores have been in debt to the ranch and stock men. The ranch has been with them.

In my way of thinking one of the things that is wrong with the world today is too much materialism. Especially of our public men who are giving their best for the benefit of the public. They in my humble judgment are being crucified every day, sir, not by the sword but by the human tongue, which cuts deeper than the sword. Who huge goes for real co-operation in all things.

J. H. A. Grimshaw, Alta.

Mating Geese

How many geese to one male? How can you tell a male? Mrs. R. K. M. Leonard, Alta. Ans: In mating the usual rule is three geese to one male. In a ratio of four to five to one is practiced by some breeders. Following is a paragraph quoted from "Geese Raising," U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, Farmers Bulletin No. 186: "It is difficult to distinguish in geese, especially when they are young. The male is usually larger, heavier and coarser than the female and has a shrill, high voice. The male has a harsh, coarse cry. The female has a softer, sweeter cry. The male has a longer neck and a larger head. The sex may be determined by inspecting the sexual or by the actions of the geese at mating. The male is the aphidic muscle, which closes the anus of the female, appears closed if struck, while the female's is open. Around the vent in the male will make the sexual organ, which is not so much as in the female. The male is made to advantage only just preceding or during the breeding season and on mature, sexually mature geese the male is lighter colored than the female."

Loss Smut in Wheat

Last year my wheat, although treated with copper carbonate had about smut. This was quite noticeable in the field, and disappeared by cutting time. Should this wheat be all right for this year, and would copper carbonate be the best treatment?

R. M. Peace River, Alta.

Ans: Quite evidently loose smut, chemical treatment is of the slightest avail against this disease. The most effective treatment is the use of the three-lime iodine solution. This is the fungus causing the trouble occurs on the inside of the seed where with corn or rye, and is not carried on the outside of the seed coat by a solution or gas applied externally. For loose smut the temperature treatment is the only effective one. This is described in the bulletin "Diseases of Cultivated Plants," "The Cause and Control," available from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The hot-water treatment is somewhat precarious and costly so that it is not recommended except as a means of cleaning up a small lot of seed. A larger stock may be propagated.

BEAUTIFYING THE HOME

Following the impetus given by the various horticultural societies throughout Canada, the beautification of the Canadian home, the many resplendent varieties of bulbs and other lovely spring flowers are becoming more and more popular in the Dominion. After a long, tedious winter they appeal to man's primitive love of rich colors in a degree seldom equaled by the floral display of later seasons. Every spring one of the most gorgeous displays of color is to be seen at the Dominion Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, where frequent displays are given to the public of these flowers are received with willing response. Investigation of their valuable information on the beautification of the home. From the "More Beautiful Canada" committee of the Canadian Horticultural Society, call as well as from Provincial Councils and local horticultural societies, anyone desirous of beautifying the home may obtain useful and practical information.

THE MODERN COW

The development of the dairy cow to its present state of perfection is an accomplishment of many years of patient and persistent effort. It has transformed the cow, which originally was required to produce only sufficient milk to support her young, into an animal yielding enough milk to supply the needs of a large family. The present day high-producing cow is an artificial animal producing milk beyond its natural capabilities, and feed which sufficed for the cow of former times is now found quite inadequate. Experience has shown that in order to maintain the service of the cow, the tissues of the body to produce offspring must be replaced in the feed, as otherwise they are supplied at the expense of the milk. The animal body, and consequently be selected and reared for the purpose of producing a general state of nutrition suffering from the continuous drain to which the body is subjected. It has been shown that substances of unknown composition, known as hormones, are essential to normal nutrition and growth, and that these vitamins have a definite relation to the secretion of nutrients material. It has further been shown that the secretion of the body is properly balanced, resulting in sufficient vitamin content to develop the body. The Canadian Dairy Director General.

SIMPLE INSECT CONTROL

The control of most vegetable insects is not a very difficult or complicated matter if the grower will look in mind one or two simple facts which can be quickly learned by watching the habits of the insects. Insects do damage, says Alan G. Duxton, Dominion Entomological Branch, according to the type of injury they do, can be divided into two general classes: those known as biting insects, which in feeding actually bite a piece out of the plant material, and those known as sucking insects, which suck the juices out of the leaves or stems without noticeably changing their outline. For biting insects (caterpillars, beetles, etc.) the grower should use a recommended arsenate of lime, or Paris green. For sucking insects (aphids, leafhoppers, etc.) are commonly controlled by spraying with a solution of potassium sulphate, either in liquid or dust form.

SEED CERTIFICATION GROWTH

The attractive premiums paid by millers for seed of the best quality in countries of Europe for Canadian milling wheat, has been a main incentive that led to the development of the Canadian system of inspection and regulation of seed of crop seeds. During the last few years, the system has been modified from time to time and gradually extended to include all kinds of field and garden vegetable crops.

NOT "APPROVED"

HANDY GARDEN INSECTICIDE

Pyrethrum, which poisons sucking insects, is obtained in the form of pale-brown to yellowish powder and consists of the pulverized flower heads of certain chrysanthemum species which grow chiefly in Balkan countries but are now being grown in this country. It is commonly used on vegetables and fruits which are soon to be eaten, since, although deadly to insects, it is non-poisonous to human beings. It is most outstandingly quick in its action. It deteriorates very quickly when exposed to air, and for this reason purchasers should be sure it is fresh and has been stored in air-tight containers. It can be used as a dust, either pure or mixed with four times its weight of cheap flour. As a spray for fruit and vegetables, it is commonly used at the rate of one ounce to a gallon of water. Vegetable insecticides should be used in the early morning or late afternoon.

ENILDA NEWS

ANOTHER STRANGE MACHINE

ENILDA, March 12.—George Berg, one of Enilda's school's brightest pupils, carried to the writer the following startling information about a mechanical monster that has made its appearance in the district from the wild and woolly southwestern town. Nanton, doubling several innocent citizens and recently taking toll on the life of a third. John Camp, brother of Denton Camp of the district, the human element in the locomotion. The machine he's running seems to be a Poker place which jiffy takes its wings and donned his meekness, but still retains a propeller as its means of movement.

This snowplane aroused much interest in the district yesterday. When its seating capacity was taken up the others refused to be left behind. Bill McCordie, Fred Williams and Arthur Stanley hitched Doris Berg's handless hand and got thrilling ride over drifts and through puddles, paying by getting thoroughly soaked from head to foot. Bill McCordie got too close to the spinner and got a slight crack on the head, which, while not serious, raised a lump which put to shame any of the caricatures of howlston. Jeff.

This vehicle has not made its way into town as yet, but were all set for it and prepared to do instant destruction should it reveal any violent robot intentions.

CROOKED CREEK

CROOKED CREEK, Mar. 12.—

Received by Friday's Mail: CROOKED CREEK, Mar. 12.—Mr. H. W. Wendi celebrated his 42nd birthday on February 28, with a large gathering of friends at his home.

The party started off with dancing until midnight, when supper was served and the dancing continued until dawn.

From a land of drought and failure. Where long years were spent in vain. Came I to the Grande Prairie. Landing by the noon-day train.

Here I found the garden blooming. Found the grasses growing green. Grain fields grew in rank abundance. Such as I had never seen.

"If," I said, "I fail to prosper. Where all nature yields her store. I will take the blame of failure. As I never did before."

But I found all land was taken. And no prospect could I see. Everything was dull and hopeless. There was nothing left for me.

Then a stranger, speaking kindly. Said: "There is a land more new. With no more sorrow or failure. We can find good land for you."

You can locate near a highway. And we boys will make a bee. We will build a house for you. Such as you would like to see."

Then, without a hesitation. I replied, "Good friend, I can. I will build my own life. But I like your spirit."

So I crossed—I crossed the Smoky. Found a land that suited me well. Everything with kindly friends and neighbors. Many years I hope to dwell.

"Often as I sit at evening. When my heart throbs with desire. I give: 'Make me worthy of my neighbors. And the land in which I live.'"

"Incidentally the stranger referred to by Mr. Fitch's composition was Mr. Herman Wendi."

After the intermission a few hours were spent in games, followed by a bounteous breakfast and terminating in a chorus of:

"For he's a jolly good fellow."

SCENIC HEIGHTS

SCENIC HEIGHTS, Mar. 10.—

Received by Friday's Mail: SCENIC HEIGHTS, Mar. 10.—The entire community was shocked to hear of the serious injuries Charlie Dixon received on Friday, March 8, at the sawmill when he accidentally came in contact with one of the large circular saws and a arm and leg were severed.

He was rushed to the Grande Prairie Municipal Hospital, where all medical efforts were in vain, death coming early Friday evening.

At the time of writing details are lacking, but it is gathered that he had been in the mill to help some of his neighbors in getting out their lumber.

It seems that he was watching operations at the mill when the fatality occurred.

As yet we have no details regarding the funeral, but the sympathy of the entire community goes out to his two brothers, Bert and Howard, in their sad bereavement.

AMERICAN "SCOTLAND YARD" TO FIGHT CRIME

Plans for an American "Scotland Yard," which would be modeled on the lines of the famous British criminal investigation department, add impetus to the drive of the United States Government to curb crime. A central organization is to be formed, built around the present Bureau of Investigation, which will handle any criminal case that is typified by inter-state ramifications. Above are three men who are pressing through the administration program. Joseph Keenan, Assistant Attorney General, who is in charge of the drive against super-criminals; Attorney General Homer A. Cummings; and Senator Royal S. Copeland, chairman of the Senate sub-committee fighting crime. Below, left, is J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Investigation Bureau, and Senator Harry Ashurst, chairman of the U. S. Senate Judiciary committee pressing the series of bills in Congress touching on crime to enactment.

LEGAL HOLDUP IS A NEW SPANISH CUSTOM

Spain, in common with almost every other country in Europe, is in the grip of discontent, sporadic outbreaks of rioting and disorder being attributed to "the policy of the Government towards the capitalistic classes." Here is a scene in Bilbao as police searched citizens in the streets after one of the flare-ups. The recent success of Conservatives at the polls is said to have increased unrest.

NOTHING ACCOMPLISHED

Just thirty years ago Japan declared war on Russia. Now they are knocking the chips off each other's shoulders again, and should they come to blows there will be a like outcome. Yet of what avail will it be if one overcomes the other, except it bring joy and gold to the munition factories of other countries.

ROYALTY GOES DEMOCRATIC AT CUPID'S CALL

Defiance of his royal relatives by Prince Sigvard of Sweden, who could not be persuaded to reconsider his determination to wed Erik Pataek, German film actress, despite the threat that he would be deprived of his royal rights, recalls other princes of the purple who underwent similar "martyrdom" for love. Prince Leopold of Sweden, cousin of Prince Sigvard, married Karin Stenqvist, daughter of a Stockholm industrialist, in 1902, and became plain Mr. Herander. The former Prince of the Asturias, heir of ex-king Alfonso of Spain, married a Cuban commander, Mier, Edelmir de Sampedro, last year, and lost his royal rights—such as they were. Still another, Prince Nicholas of Roumania, married Lucia Delti, an actress, and gave his brother, King Carol, a black eye for voicing objections to the union. Return to God
The Only Hope
Of the World

Speaking for his text verse of the 13th Psalm, "I will take the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord," Major Carruthers, in charge of the Salvation Army for Alberta, enumerated some of the cups from which we must choose.

Major was speaking at the evening service held in the Army hall on Sunday, March 11.

Among the cups named were the cup of pleasure, the cup of commercialism, and the cup of indifference.

At the outset of his remarks, Major Carruthers said that he was not a drinker, and the cups from which we must choose are those to which we like to drink.

Speaking on the cup of pleasure, Major Carruthers said that it was not a drink, but a pleasure, and it is distinctly understood that he was not a drinker.

On the contrary, he said, it was a pleasure, and it is distinctly understood that he was not a drinker.

HARD-TIME DANCE TO BE HELD IN SCHOOLHOUSE

On Friday, March 23, another of the dances for which MacHenry is well-known—that is, one where everybody has a real party—will be held at the schoolhouse.

The occasion, however, will be a hard-time dance. At that, every body should have a good time. It will be held in the schoolhouse.
